HARRY CLIFTON BADLY HURT IN WRECK

Did You Know
By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT the man who donated the land for the High-st cemetery was the first person to be buried there. George Crook presented the land to the city in January, 1831. The cemetery was dedicated on March 19, 1831. Mr. Crook was buried there January 1, 1832. He was 33 years old.

That the first railroad to operate through Pickaway-co was the Cincinnati, Wilmington and Zanesville, formerly the C. and M. V. The railroad was completed and the first train ran through here in 1857. The next road was the Scioto Valley which started operation in 1876 and ran between Columbus and Circleville.

That Clement L. Martzolf, for many years head of the department of history at Ohio University, Athens, and noted authority on Ohio History, taught here in the Lutheran congregation school in 1898.

That Tarlton, the first village in the county, was laid out in 1801 by Benjamin Newell and was first called Newell's Town. Later the name was changed to honor General Tarlton, a Revolutionary War officer.

That on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, 1926, seven inches of snow fell in Circleville and the temperature was two degrees above zero.

THAT Wednesday, April 27, will represent the 20th anniversary of the burning of the famous aqueduct which spanned the Scioto river here for 84 years. This great structure of bridge-work, conceived at one time to be the finest in the state, was burned after two previous unsuccessful attempts by incendiaries. At 12:30 p. m. on Tuesday, April 27, 1915, drift wood and corn stalks which had been set afire were extinguished by the fire department. Then at 5 p. m. the same day fire again broke out and once more the blaze was put out. However, the third time the "firebug" was successful. At 11 p. m. William 'Dude' Stottlemire, bridge tender, discovered a blaze in the third arch of the west end of the bridge. The flames soon spread and at 12:30 p. m. the massive structure fell into the Scioto river. Men, women and children in every kind of night garb lined the banks of the river to see the blaze which brought destruction to an ancient Circleville landmark. The aqueduct cost $30,000. Work was begun on it May 28, 1828 by Contractor Lowery, under the supervision of Chief Engineer P. N. White. Timber used in its construction was floated up the river from Portsmouth. The first boat to pass through when the aqueduct was completed was the "Governor Brown," a Circleville-made product. The aqueduct was opened Sept. 19, 1831.

That M. L. Stoddard of Tarlton in July, 1875, received a shipment of bees via the mail route from Clifton, Missouri. According to newspapers of the time, it was thought to have been the first time that a hive of "honey-makers" was sent through the mails.

END WASTE NEXT

G. O. P. Sees Fuel for Next Campaign

COLUMBUS, Mar. 23—While a widespread search was under way for his whereabouts, the contents of two statements made to a federal investigator by John A. Lee, suspended employee of the state relief organization, were revealed here today.

In one of the statements, taken on March 11 by W. H. Kinler, special FERA investigator from Washington, Lee admitted collecting a total of $3150, most of which was turned over to the state Democratic committee to make up its campaign fund deficit, it was disclosed.

COLUMBUS, Mar. 23—While the paths of the state and federal administrations apparently now lead to a common goal—the elimination of waste from relief—the week's developments in the Ohio relief controversy today found the two definitely and, according to the general belief, permanently on the outs.

Whether the wide chasm between Governor Davey and the national administration will be of such lasting effect that it will endanger the chances of a Democratic victory in Ohio in 1936 was a matter troublesome to many Democrats. Republicans, on the other hand, made copious notes on the turbulent relief situation to be held in reserve for campaign purposes.

Davey Sees Victory

Undismayed by a grand jury investigation of Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins' charges that an attempt was made to mix politics with relief in this state, Governor Davey contends that developments to date are a vindication of his position and that his loud

Gingher Plans Change In Liquor Purchases

COLUMBUS, March 23—Sen. Paul Gingher (R) of Columbus plans to lead a movement to give the state liquor board authority to approve contracts executed by the state director of liquor control.

Although Lockwood Thompson, Cleveland, member of the liquor board, has urged sponsors of new liquor laws to include a provision to give the board authority to pass on the director's contracts for purchase of liquor, no steps have been taken to draft necessary legislation.

Sen. Gingher said he has asked the legislative reference bureau to prepare an amendment that would give the board this authority. He pointed out that this is an important phase of the responsibility resting with state liquor control officials and the director should have the counsel of the board in making large purchases.

Loans in Past Two Years Cut Soldiers' Sums Here

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23—If Congress pays the bonus now, Pickaway-co veterans will get approximately $48,293 less than they would have received had payment been made in 1932.

This situation was revealed by a new set of figures presented to Congress by Wright Patman, father of the original bonus bill, and showing the amounts which would be paid to veterans in each county in the United States if the bonus were paid now. This new list was compiled from statistics as of December 31, 1934, Patman said.

The figure for Pickaway-co, under this list, is $434,636.77. Two years ago, Patman made public a list showing the amounts due veterans as of December 31, 1931. At that time, Pickaway-co veterans were listed for $482,929.74. The shrinkage represents additional loans to veterans on their certificates, and accumulated interest on such loans. In his speech at the time he presented the new list, Patman pointed out that veterans are rapidly losing their equities in their adjusted service certificates, by being forced to pay compound interest on their loans. "Veterans who have borrowed 50 percent under the present law will have very little remaining in 1945," he declared. "It is not right for the government and the banks to consume these valuable equities by forcing the veterans to pay compound interest on their own money."

HOOVER RE-ENTERS STAGE OF POLITICS

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23—Herbert Hoover's re-entry on the political stage today, with detailed criticism of the New Deal and a Republican call to arms for 1936, evoked wide interest and varying comment in the capital.

To the politicians of both parties, Mr. Hoover's letter to the California assembly sounded suspiciously like the first draft of a platform that Mr. Hoover would like to see the Republican party adopt next year. And most of them were agreed that in all probability Mr. Hoover would consent to be "drafted" on such a platform.

The threat of Mr. Hoover's platform, running throughout his letter, is that the New Deal is "un-American" and that individual liberty has been restrained to an unconstitutional degree by its operation.

FRENCH DENY ARMY MASSED

Troops Not Held In Readiness Near Border, Ministry Declares

PARIS, March 23—French army and government officials today denied sensational reports that French troops were massing on the Reich border in readiness for a possible conflict with Germany.

"This is the first news we have had of troops moving up to the Reich frontier as related in dispatches from France to the United States," the ministry of war told International News Service when questioned about the reports.

"It is absolutely untrue, and the war ministry never confirmed such a story."

"Strategic points" of the French frontiers were strengthened some time ago as the international situation developed warranting it. This was revealed to the war commission of the chamber of deputies on Thursday by Minister of War Gen. Louis Felix Maurin.

Double Deadly Torpedo

LONDON, March 23—Germany, despite restrictions of the peace treaties, has perfected an "invisible" and hence doubly deadly torpedo, it was stated today in the Daily Telegraph, usually well-informed on naval matters.

The new torpedo, according to the Telegraph's naval correspondent, is propelled by electricity instead of air, the old method which always permitted a tell-tale stream of bubbles to float to the surface of the water and betray the torpedo's course.

NOTED FLYER DIES ON 'LAST FLIGHT'

NEW YORK, March 23—A sad finis had been written today to the career of one of the best known and most romantic figures in commercial aviation.

James H. (Jimmy) Collins, test pilot, was killed late yesterday on what was to have been his last test flight and on the eve of what he had regarded as his greatest "break."

The Grumman biplane fighter which Collins was testing for the navy came to pieces in mid-air and crashed in the Pinelawn cemetery near Farmingdale, L. I. He died almost instantly.

Collins, who was 33, signed a contract about three weeks ago to write a daily column for a newspaper syndicate. He had obtained this position as the result of an article on the testing of military airplanes which he wrote recently for a national magazine.

Assured of a good income and a chance to live more conventionally with his wife and two small children, Collins had decided to abandon stunt and "test flying."

Yesterdays' flight was definitely to have been his last.

FIEND KILLER FACES DEATH

Fish, 65, Found Guilty of Murdering Budd Girl; To Hear Sentence Monday

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 23—Albert H. Fish, 65-year-old house painter, will be sentenced on Monday to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison for the "fiend murder" of a ten-year-old Grace Budd in a lonely Westchester - co cottage in 1928.

A jury in supreme court found the old man guilty of first degree murder after deliberating for three and a half hours last night.

Fish lured the Budd girl from her home in New York on the promise of taking her to a party in the Bronx, killed the child and dismembered her body after subjecting her to numerous atrocities.

He was tracked down and arrested a few months ago through an obscene letter which he wrote the child's parents, taunting them. Fish's trial began ten days ago and his Attorney James Dempsey sought to prove the defendant was legally insane when he committed the crime.

The prosecution, while admitting Fish guilty of many prevarications, insisted he knew the difference between right and wrong when he killed the little girl and therefore was legally sane. Various prominent alienists testified for both sides.

AUTO STRIKES CULVERT NEAR COUNTY HOME

Skull Fractured; Business Man Remains Unconscious in Hospital

TIRE BLOWS OUT

New Machine Wrecked in Terrific Crash

Harry E. Clifton, 41, operator of the Cliftona theatre and the Reliable Motors Co., was in a precarious condition in Berger hospital today suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident about 2:30 a. m. Saturday. The accident happened on the Lancaster-pk near the county infirm.

Mr. Clifton was alone.

At noon today he had not regained consciousness. He is suffering from a fractured skull. It was also reported he had a fractured jaw and other injuries but hospital attaches reported the only injury of which they were aware was the skull fracture.

Believe Tire Blew Out

Mr. Clifton had been at his theatre, the Liberty, in Lancaster Friday evening and was returning home in a 1935 Ford V-8. Garage-men said today that a print on the road at the scene of the accident showed them that a tire had probably blown out. The car went off the south side of the road, striking a culvert, and then came back into the highway where it was found in a righted position.

Ray Davis, employee of the Funk Groceries, and a Lancaster youth named Binkley, reached the scene shortly after the accident and found Mr. Clifton hunched over in the front seat. They took him to Berger hospital where he was placed under the care of Dr. Howard Jones. Davis and Binkley were driving toward this city.

Many View Auto

Mr. Clifton's automobile, which was carrying a dealer's license, was badly wrecked. It was towed to his garage Saturday morning where scores of persons saw it. A place where the driver's head struck the front of the car could be seen.

Three Killed at Railroad Crossing

XENIA, Mar. 23—Three persons, one of them a woman, were instantly killed today when the automobile in which they riding was struck at a crossing in the heart of Spring Valley, a village located six miles south of Xenia, by the Cincinnati Limited passenger train which was running 40 minutes late.

Search of the wreckage of the accident uncovered baby clothing strewn along the tracks. There was no sign that a baby was among the victims, however.

The automobile was completely demolished by the speeding passenger train and the bodies of the two men and woman were mangled almost beyond recognition.

Hurled Against Car

The body of the woman was hurled out of the machine and flung against a freight car standing on a siding nearby. Wreckage debris was strung along the railroad tracks for nearly a quarter of a mile.

POSTOFFICE SAFE BLASTED, LOOTED

CALDWELL, Mar. 23—A gang of four safe-crackers "blew" the safe in the Summerfield postoffice near here early today and fled with loot totalling $250 in stamps and cash.

The burglars escaped in a light blue sedan automobile over route 78. A posse from the sheriff's office here set out on their trail immediately.

Investigation disclosed that nitro-glycerin was used to crack the safe.

WHY SUPPORT THE CHURCH

For my own sake as well as for the world's sake I support my church, She is my spiritual mother. She taught me my prayers and led my feet into the pleasant paths of the Book of God. She purified my purposes and prepared me for living. She urges me to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with God. When I stumble, she steadies me; when I suffer she visits me with her consolations; when I sorrow, she has the only word that comforts me; and when I go down through the valley of the shadow of death she will light my way home. Therefore I support my church with my money and my might and I welcome the opportunity to express my love for Christ and his church in a substantial way. WHY NOT ACCEPT THE INVITATION AND COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

The Lord's day is the first day in the week. One-seventh of a man's time and one-tenth of man's income belongs to God. How fitting to begin each new week with God by meeting with Him and His people at the place of worship and by bringing him the first-fruits of our increase.

It is good to send our children to church and church school and thus train up a child in the way he should go. It is better, while training our child thus, that we should go that way ourselves.

A father started up town on Sunday morning in the snow. He heard crashing in the snow behind. Turned to find his boy following. He said: Son what are you doing? In childish glee, he said, "O I was just trying to put my feet in your tracks." The father paused, stunned and thrust through the heart. Then bracing himself said: Fine my son. Come on we are going to church, and led his child to salvation in Jesus.

Are we conscious of the fact that the greatest danger confronting our country is Paganism? Many of our other ills can be traced to the fact that we have left God out of our reckoning. If we make no contribution to the church life to maintain religion then we are by so much contributing to a growing paganism. Paganism is just a refined heathenism. We do not bow down before idols of wood or metal. We simply worship nothing higher than ourselves. Despite our conceit we haven't really worshiped anything higher and infinitely above ourselves. Only so does life become truly worthwhile. Only so does life have a hope to cherish of a life beyond this life for which this is the preparation. No doubt you can get along without religion until trouble comes. Then something intractable with- in cries out for God. The church stands for religion in the best sense. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend.

To live in an illimitable world and yet not lose sight of one's immediate peace and task, is the secret of living both largely and well.

Sunday March 31 is the last Sunday of this church year. What has been our contribution to making it a good year? What contribution of service and devotion will we make to the new church year?

Are we conscious of the fact that the greatest danger confronting our country is Paganism? Many of our other ills can be traced to the fact that we have left God out of our reckoning. The Time Table of Religion

In the book "Elemental Religion," L. P. Jacks says that he asked a teacher one day where in his time table he taught religion. The teacher replied, "We teach it all day long. We teach it in arithmetic by accuracy. We teach it in language by learning to say what we mean. We teach it in geography by breadth of mind. We teach it in handicraft by thoroughness. We teach it in astronomy by reverence. We teach it in the playground, by fair play. We teach it by kindness to animals, by courtesy to servants, by good manners to one another, and by helpfulness in all things. We teach it by showing the young that we their elders are their friends and lovers."

All human experience, when deeply understood turns out to be spiritual. In all forms of it, even in the most familiar, there is an element which reveals, when we understand it rightly, the ceaseless impact, the inescapable pressure of the living God. It is a deplorable tendency which has arisen in an age, too much given to the study of religion and too little to the practice of it, of separating religious experience, of treating it as the privilege of a spiritual aristocracy.

Lesson for March 24

PETER DESCRIBES THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—1 Peter 3:8-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts; and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear. 1 Peter 3:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Pleasing Jesus Every Day.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Way of Living.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Like a Christian.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Our Christian Profession.

Having given instructions to citizens (2:13, 14), servants (2:18), wives (3:1-6), and husbands (3:7), Peter now sets forth the attitude and motives which are required for the perfection of all the relations of human life.

1. Characteristics of the Christian Life (vv. 8-11).

These find expression in personal attitudes and manner of living.

1. Toward fellow believers (v. 8).

a. "All of one mind." This means unity of thought and feeling. Christians being united to the one Lord Jesus Christ, animated by the one Holy Spirit and governed by the one Book, the Holy Scriptures, will inevitably come into possession of like-mindedness.

b. "Having compassion one of another." This means more than sympathy in times of sorrow. It means the sharing of joys as well as sorrows.

c. "Love as brethren." Being of the one family, a common affection should dominate its members.

d. "Be pitiful." This means tenderhearted, expressing itself in sympathy toward the helpless and needy.

e. "Be courteous." This means friendliness, Christian politeness.

2. Toward the world (vv. 9-11).

a. "Not rendering evil for evil." Positively expressed, this means doing good for evil. The natural man renders evil for evil. The believer has been called thus to manifest the spirit of Christ.

b. "Eschew evil and do good" (v. 11). This means to shun or turn away from one's course at the approach of evil and the positive doing of good.

c. "Seek peace, and ensue it." It is not enough for a believer to refrain from conflict. He must bend every energy in the direction of peace.

II. Incentives to Christian Living (vv. 12-14).

1. "The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers" (v. 12). God not only takes account of their efforts to live righteously, but his ears are open to their cries for help.

2. "The face of the Lord is against them that do evil" (v. 12). God will surely visit in judgment those who depart from the way of right living.

3. God will protect and keep those who bend their energies to the doing of good (v. 13).

4. Happiness in suffering (v. 14). This means the suffering which results from the pursuing of the ways of righteousness.

III. How the Christian Life Can Be Lived (vv. 15, 16).

It cannot be lived in the power of human strength. A divine dynamic is provided.

1. "Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts" (v. 15). The Revised Version says, "Sanctify Christ as Lord," enthroning Jesus Christ as the Lord of life.

2. Be ready to give a reason for your hope (v. 15). A Christian should have an understanding of his faith, such as to give a reason to the inquirer. The Christian's faith rests upon the highest reason.

3. Live a conscientious life (v. 16). One's life should be so lived that the consciousness that actions are consistent before God and man is possible. Such a life will put to shame evil men who falsely accuse and desperately use the believer.

IV. The Issue of the Christian Life (vv. 17, 18).

Christ said to the disciples that they would receive the same treatment that the world accorded him. Paul says, "All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (1 Tim. 3:12). If God wills that we suffer for well doing, let us rejoice, looking to Christ as our supreme example.

Helps to Better Faith

Every noble act of devotion to truth, every pure life unstained with evil, every word of pity, every instance of forgiving goodness, helps us to a better faith in that divine and eternal goodness which has no variability or shadow of turning.—Dr. J. F. Clarke.

Try It Yourself

Whatever may be said of the philosophy of Coleridge, his proof of the truth of Christianity was most simple and conclusive. It consisted in the words, "Try it for yourself."

The city of Bombay, India, recently produced its own passion play entitled "The Man of Sorrows." It was based on the play made famous at Oberammergau. It had a cast of 28 actors, a choir of 198 and an orchestra of 48. It is said that some 20,000 people witnessed the production.

The family of Dr. Lewis R. Scudder, a well-known medical missionary has given the equivalent of a thousand years of missionary service in India. Since then 37 members of his family have served in India, including six of the fourth generation, now in service.

One of the most significant developments in Japan the past year has been the sudden interest shown by the people in religion. This takes the form of making religious books best sellers. BEGIN ADVERTISING NOW

NEWSPAPER advertising enjoys the greatest patronage of any form of advertising. Huge corporations spend tremendous sums every year to inform and lead the buyer. The press delivers the goods and gets the bulk of the appropriation.

The situation in Circleville is the same as anywhere else. Here the newspaper is the best form of publicity, as well as the cheapest. Merchants who delay their advertising because they do not intend to outstep cigarette manufacturers are losing business through their failure.

It is better for every advertiser to begin modestly and expand than to begin extravagantly and lose his money, and most costly to his business, his faith in the power of advertising. If there is anything on the market today that has been put over without advertising we don't know what it is. Every merchant realizes this, even if he doesn't emulate the example of those who put things over.

THE SILVER KING'S WIDOW

IN COLORADO and in a great part of the West, the most absorbing story in the news is that which deals with the death of "Baby Doe" Tabor, widow of the once great silver king.

Elizabeth Tabor was one of the most beautiful women of her day. She was courted by many but married the owner of the Matchless Mine, from which a wealth of silver flowed in an unceasing stream.

President Arthur and the members of his cabinet attended their wedding. They lived in a mansion and in an atmosphere of royal splendor. Finally, in 1893, the fabulous wealth of H. A. W. Tabor was swept away with the collapse of the silver market.

Years of privation followed, also of loneliness for Mrs. Tabor after her husband's death. The woman, so the story goes, gave her promise always to keep watch over the silver king's once great Matchless Mine.

And she kept this promise until the end. In the midst of the signs of poverty and of squalor, the body of this faithful old woman was found in a shack on the outskirts of Leadville, the abandoned mine nearby holding a shadowy promise of renewed riches and power.

SPARE THE HURDY-GURDY

UP TO NOW there has been a great deal to admire in the administration of Mayor LaGuardia of New York. A free and courageous spirit who knows not the yoke of any political party, he has dealt with each of the constantly pressing problems of his office in accordance with his best judgment, which is usually clear, progressive and sound.

The mayor need not be surprised, however, if many of his old friends and admirers are alienated in consequence of his harsh edict abolishing the hurdy-gurdy from New York's streets. Just what worth, while purpose, it would be interesting to know, is served by this order?

The losses which its banishment involves are definite and undeniable. The hurdy-gurdy is a picturesque reminder of a departed day. It affords a means of sustenance, meager, it is true, to the owner and the inevitable monkey or the green parrot that picks a forecast of the future out of a box for the curious soul who is willing to invest five or ten cents for this advance information. The hurdy-gurdy even fills the air with music, imperfect at times, it is true, and what is most important, it serves as a harbinger of Spring.

Before he goes through with this fell scheme, Mayor LaGuardia should read Alfred Noyes' romantic poem called "The Barrel-Organ," which tells of the music that "pulses through the pleasures of the city and the pain" and the "symphony that rules the day and night."

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

READ THIS FIRST:
Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but fond of her father, Girtza, Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him until she suspects her gypsy sweetheart has tricked her about the ring's value. In town she sees three men playing cards near a private car on a railroad siding. She dances for them. Much impressed, one of the men, Stewart Blackmore, New York theatrical producer, promises to return in 10 days and give Consuelo a pair of slippers. Marcu bargains with Girtza for his daughter's hand. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 16

MARCU HELD out his purse with the gold pieces and the finely made watch that had been his mother's. "This coin will hit to the end of your wagon."

"It is good," Girtza counted the money and handed back the empty purse to Marcu. "Consuelo," he shouted, although it was not necessary, for the girl was sitting near him, her untouched breakfast plate in her lap. "Consuelo, come put your hand in this man's. When he has given me three horses he will be your master. Come, my child."

Consuelo rose, and like one in a stupor, came to Marcu and placed her hand in his. The diamond, shining in all its loveliness, was upon her finger.

Then it was that the gypsies raised a shout and threw their scarfs into the air and Peter picked up his flute and played. All the gypsies gathered in a circle around them and danced and sang. Marcu stood as proud as a king and his heart near burst within him. He glanced down at the girl, but she, like a well-behaved promised one, was looking down and no one saw her eyes.

Gaily the camp went about the morning tasks. The gypsies' voices were loud with discussion of the coming event and jests were made and laughter came light and easy and other of the young men began to flirt more openly with the young gypsy girls. So the monotony of the last hot summer days was stirred into life and it was more like spring than autumn.

Money was produced from belts that had boasted of none. Kegs of beer were bought. There were scarves and inexpensive jewelry presented to the girl. Some one gave Marcu a new knife. Its steel blade shining, its handle pure ivory.

The news leaked into town. Curiosity was aroused. A gypsy wedding. Did they really get married? Smith's grocery store offered five gallons of hard cider if Smith, wife and family might be permitted to witness the ceremony. The promise of cider was accepted. Other gorgios also announced their intention of coming whether they were invited or not.

For two days Marcu disappeared and when he came back, dusty and tired, was riding a young sorrel and leading a mare heavy with colt. He rode up to Girtza and said: "Here are your three horses."

How the gypsies laughed! Girtza pulled at his long beard and spat on the ground and said that it was not the bargain.

But Marcu was insistent. The gypsies stopped laughing. Perhaps there was some sense in what he said. They felt of the mare and nodded and talked with one another. "It will not be longer than three days before she foals. Perhaps only two."

All morning the discussion kept up and in the end Girtza agreed to accept the mares and the unborn colt and they set the wedding at three days hence to live up to the bargain, for they were all of the opinion that the mare would not carry longer than the three days.

The new assurance the Dummy had taken on after the fight with Marcu vanished. He put the old away in his box and his brushes lay idle. He kept out of the merry-making, for with the opening of the beer, it had already started. His dark eyes were shrouded with heaviness, his face pale under the tawny skin, his slim fingers restless, but he could not sleep. Laughing heads on canvas? Ah, no. He had not the heart for them.

He drew a small sketch of her in black, a veil about her head, her clothes of somber hue, her body hidden. Only a bare throat and a pale face with eyes cast down were visible. So had she looked to him when the gypsies made the betrothal circle. But when he had finished the picture he could not bear the sadness it had drawn, so he burned it.

His heart was heavy with bitterness. He blood throbbed in his temples and he cursed his dead lips. If he could talk, if he could hear, Consuelo would be his. But what right had he to fight for her, a half dead man as he was. Oh, God, why hadn't he been born blind that he might never have seen her loveliness, could never have dreamed of her, never have desired her until life itself was not worth while without her.

Then he cursed himself for a fool and beat his hands against his breast. "If there is a God in the heaven, let him forgive me," and he fell to his knees and gave thanks that he was not blind. And the artist soul of him gave thanks for her beauty, but it did not heal his sore heart.

He went back to the camp and joined in with the others. Because his eyes were dark and fogging, the gypsies did not joke with him because he had not won the girl. He drank beer with them, but it did not lift the cloud of his sorrow.

One of the men showed a battle kerchief he had made for Consuelo. The Dummy had given her nothing. He had been so concerned with himself that he had not thought of it. Now the time was growing short, only this afternoon and tomorrow left. Then she would be a bride. He must have a gift for her. Something beautiful—something beautiful—

He left the group and hastened into town. It took him an hour to buy a piece of white silk. He ran back to camp, the sweat rolling down his body. Feverishly he unwrapped the paints and brushes, stretched the silk on a board. The heat of the afternoon sun poured down upon him, but he worked like one possessed. The silk took shape. He forgot the merry-makers; forgot the bitter hurt within him. Creation was pulsing through his fingers to take form.

The sun seemed to fly on wheels of flaming gold toward the hills, but still he worked. The call came for dinner. He was not missed. The purple shades of twilight came down to the hills. He worked on. The light did not matter now. He could have closed his eyes and kept on working, so well did his mind portray the picture he was putting upon the white silk.

Now the last sweep of the brush.

Darkness settled down, the hushed expectant darkness before the moon. Only the shadowy figures in the distance shined against the glow from the campfire. The oils on the crude palette began to run and blend together. The moon rose and touched the darkness with silver and fell upon the square of silk, facing it with shadows from the leaves of the tree above it.

Exhausted, the Dummy fell into sleep. He was sitting in a great forest and the girl beside him. He was talking to her, telling her of his love, and his voice was sweet and good. She answered him and he heard. He held her close to him and buried his lips in the shroud of her raven hair. He whispered all the things that had been in his heart so long. Finally she lay in sleep, her head upon his arm and the painted piece of silk a covering for her.

The moon had gone down when he awoke. He was cold. The grass was covered with dew. The leaves of the tree bent heavy above him. With aching muscles he rose to his feet. The silk was wet from the dew. For a long time he stared down at the thing which he had created as if now he was seeing it for the first time, and it was beautiful. A shawl for this girl he loved.

He crept beside the bonfire, putting fuel upon it, and warmed his chilled body. The camp was very silent except for the snores of the men. His eyes traveled to the van where Consuelo slept. The curtains were pulled aside. He went close and for an instant looked down upon her face, the black hair in tangled curls around her shoulders. Many times he had seen her in sleep, but never had she looked so beautiful to him. His dream, the girl asleep against his shoulder. He went back to the fire and lay down. He bent his head wearily and tears, unemotional, rolled down his cheeks and he was not ashamed of them.

Shortly before noon the Dummy gave the shawl to the girl, his lips smiling. The gypsies crowded round, hushed at the thing they saw, staring at the beauty of it and then arose the babble of sound, exclamations of delight, of envy.

Consuelo let him put the shawl about her shoulders. She did not speak, but her eyes thanked him. In the confusion of the wedding preparations no one noticed that the girl had not spoken these many days, but had been sullen and brooding, surely no way for a promised one to act.

For a long moment the Dummy stared into her eyes, then he turned and left her. He had done the thing he wanted. She had no lover left. His outer sense was satisfied, but the inner part of his being was more lonely than ever.

AT THE GRAND

Enthusiasm spoiled a scene during the production of "Sweet Adeline," the Warner Bros. musical hit now showing at the Grand Theatre.

When Irene Dunne was about to sing the beautiful Jerome Kern number, "Why Was I Born," the extras were instructed to applaud and to make wild comments such as "Fine," "Wonderful," "Who is that new singer," etc.

At the end of Miss Dunne's song one over-enthusiastic extra forgot himself and his voice, audible above the rumble of comment, registered, "Best d--n singing I ever heard."

The scene was retaken.

AT THE CLIFTONA

One of the eight technical advisers retained by Paramount for "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," coming Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to the Cliftona Theatre, was Major G. O. T. Bagley, himself a former officer of the famous British India cavalry unit. Gary Cooper, Francis Ford, Richard Cromwell and Sir Guy Standing head the cast of the picture which was four years in preparation for the screen and employed over four thousand actors.

Editorial Of The Day

HOLDING COMPANIES (Ashland Times-Gazette)

Holding companies in the power field have been guilty of many wrongs in the past few years. The Insull organization is an example of how far such concerns will go if not held under proper legal control.

Congress is now considering a bill that would abolish public utility holding companies.

Whether or not the holding companies should be outlawed is a debatable question. We must take into consideration that the holding company, if properly organized, performs the same purpose for industry that the incorporated company does for the individual.

The public utility holding company has been the instrument of many abuses due to the fact that it has not been properly regulated.

If the measure becomes law, useful consolidation as well as those of questionable value, will be abolished. The real problem, we believe, is essentially that of wise supervision, with the federal and state governments cooperating rather than outright destruction of the companies as proposed in the Rayburn bill.

Giving Home Invalid Bath Is Task One Should Know

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

TO GIVE the invalid a bath in bed is rightly regarded as the apex of the nicety of nursing technique.

The home nurse regards this procedure with awe and dread. Yet all she needs to do to gain assurance is to plan a bath in bed and give one.

The whole secret of success is in planning ahead. Close the windows and put a screen in front of the door. A screen can be improvised with a clothes horse and a blanket. A table and chair should be put at the head of the bed at the right side of the patient.

Prepare a bucket of hot water and a dishpan to wring out the washcloths. The dishpan should have some hot water in it to begin with so you can rinse the washcloths. Two washcloths are needed—one for the face, one for the body. A bath towel and a face towel to spread on the bed to protect it from wetting and other towels for drying should be ready. A cake of castile soap, talcum powder and tooth paste should be on the table. Toothbrush, glass of water, and spit basin for tooth brushing, and you are ready.

After the tooth brushing, take away all pillows but one and take off the nightgown, take away all bed coverings except a sheet. Put a face to towel on the pillow and spread a bath towel on the bed so that it can be moved around as you proceed from one part of the body to the other.

Use a firm stroke in washing and drying. The incidental massage is as beneficial as the cleansing. The bath is not only a means of cleanliness. It also makes the invalid feel good. And it may prevent disagreeable skin complications such as bed sores. The skin throws poisons during illness, which dry on the surface. The bath removes this possible source of danger. And the gentle friction of the washcloth improves the circulation and gives a general feeling of well being to the whole body.

So much for the cleansing bath. It may also be necessary to give a sponge bath for temperature—one of the most valuable procedures in treatment. The technique is the same as the cleansing bath except that no soap is used and the water should be lukewarm or cool—70 to 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

CAN NORTH FULFILL HIS CONTRACT?

THE DEAL shown today was characterized by very bold bidding, resulting in a grand slam spade contract by North, an obligatory double by East, and a contract defeated only by East's ability to win a single heart trick. South found fault with his partner's venturing beyond a small slam call. He also asked if any player could have fulfilled the contract against the best defense, after the opening lead of the K of clubs.

♦ K 9 8 2
♣ A K 9 6

♠ Q 4 3

♦ A Q J
♣ Q 10 8 4

I have no idea who was responsible chiefly for the grand slam contract nor do I know just how North played the hand. He should have tried for a grand slam in the only possibly way to make it.

North ruffed the K of clubs. Play thereafter as follows: Win the next trick with the K of spades and the third trick with dummy's Q to obviate the possibility that West might ruff a diamond if left a trump, also to towel on the pillow and spread a bath towel on the bed so that it can be moved around as you proceed from one part of the body to the other.

And it may prevent disagreeable skin complications such as bed sores. The skin throws poisons during illness, which dry on the surface. The bath removes this possible source of danger. And the gentle friction of the washcloth improves the circulation and gives a general feeling of well being to the whole body.

So much for the cleansing bath. It may also be necessary to give a sponge bath for temperature—one of the most valuable procedures in treatment. The technique is the same as the cleansing bath except that no soap is used and the water should be lukewarm or cool—70 to 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

The Social circle of the Reformed Evangelical church met on Thursday afternoon, March 21, at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Thad Lyons with her daughter, Lucy, Mrs. H. E. Brown and Mrs. Ray Creschbaum assistant hostesses. The meeting came to order at 2:30 o'clock by all singing the Doxology with Miss Faith Maxwell at the piano, and the president Mrs. Helen Ross presiding. After all repeating the Lord's prayer, the first and fifth Psalms were read responsively. The secretary, Mrs. Laura Evans, read the minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll, finding thirty members and a number of visitors present. After singing "One Day for Thee" Rev. Schlundt made a few appropriate remarks comparing his speech to a spare tire as he was not expecting to be on the program. During the business session an invitation was read from the Colerain Ladies' Aid to attend a union meeting on April 4 in the Colerain church. The meeting closed by all singing "God Will Take Care of You" and all repeating Micah. After school and the children arrived, the following musical numbers were presented Betty Jane and Norma Jean Lyons and Helen Marie Maxwell sang "Good Ship Lollipop." Betty Jane and Norma Jean sang "Someone on a Golden Deed" and Helen Marie sang "The old Spinning Wheel." They were accompanied by Miss Faith Maxwell. Visitors present were Mrs. J. E. Poole, Mrs. J. TOURNEY FINALS TONIGHT

AKRON NORTH, COSHOCTON TO PLAY CLASS A

Waterloo Ranking Favorite to Take Oxford Stewart; Central Is Eliminated

COLUMBUS, March 23—Akron North vs. Coshocton.

This was the line-up for the finals tonight of Ohio's state high school basketball championship after two hectic days of rapid-fire games which saw twelve teams fall by the wayside.

Akron North won the right to meet Coshocton's Redskins for the Class "A" crown last night by smashing out an overwhelming 46 to 21 score against Columbus Central in the semi-final round in the cavernous coliseum at the state fairgrounds here.

The Akron team, exhibiting an artful, roving zone defense, held the Red and Black Pirates of Central scoreless throughout the entire first half, save for five free throws, four of which were sunk by Bob Elder, negro star of the team.

Victory Easy One

The rangy northern squad, showing a marked deadliness on their shots, completely outplayed the Central and walked off with one of the easiest victories of the tournament.

Coshocton showed great offensive possibilities during the first half of its battle with Lima Central and, with the aid of an excellent zone defense, captured a 16-to-2 lead at the half-time. The second half, however, was more evenly fought with Lima outscoring the Red and Black by a 9-to-8 margin, but the Coshocton squad had too large a lead to overcome.

The work of Ken Daugherty, lanky center, and Gerald Crowthers, rangy forward, featured Coshocton's attack. Forrest Moor and Don Paul led the Lima squad's futile attempt to down the Redskins.

Waterloo's rampaging Wonders showed exceptional power in defeating Fremont St. Joseph, one of the tournament's dark horses, by an impressive 48 to 21 score. The Sandusky countians made a real battle of it during the first half but were outclassed by too large a margin to gain a victory.

The passing of Orlyn Roberts and Capt. Curt McMahon featured the game, while Beryl Drummond, mite forward, and Wyman Roberts, emerged from the contest with eighteen and seventeen points respectively. Herb Miesie starred for the losers.

Oxford Stewart showed great potentialities in its 29-to-14 defeat of Maumee.

Stewart ran up a 12-0 score in the first quarter and was never threatened. Work of Earl Cheers, lanky Oxford colored center, on rebounds featured the contest. Frances Wallen led the Orange and Black attack with fourteen points. Ralph Crandall was outstanding for Maumee.

McClain Loses Again

Dayton Stivers took Greenfield McClain into camp by a 32 to 28 score and will meet Akron West, defending consolation champs, for the consolation crown tonight. Play of Capt. Jimmie Hull, of the losers, featured the encounter. He scored 12 points. Larry Knorr was the Stivers satellite with thirteen points for the scoring honors of the game.

Battle of Century: Dean vs. Ruth!

Babe Ruth is thirsting for his next crack at Dizzy Dean, after being held hitless in first game in which he faced him, at St. Petersburg, Fla. Largest crowd in Florida baseball history turned out to see Dizzy make good his promise to keep Ruth off bases. To show there's no ill-feeling, however, they grin at each other after game, during which this remarkable photo was made. (Central Press)

DEAN AND OTHER CARDS CLUBBED

LAKE LAND, Fla., March 23— "If only we could have done in October what we did in March."

Detroit Tigers, young and old, are telling each other this today as they chucked over the 12 to 5 wallop they gave the St. Louis Cardinals and the less dizzy half of the Deans, Paul, yesterday while 2,882 customers looked on.

And the beauty of it all came in watching a couple of left handed rookies setting the world champions on their collective ears. Clyde (Mad) Hatter and Joe Sullivan did the pitching while the one and only Dizzy Dean, who won two of the world series games from the Tigers last fall, sat on the bench.

NEW CAGE RULES MAY BE ENACTED

COLUMBUS, March 23—Officials that govern athletics in Ohio high schools and the majority of the state's colleges were scheduled to meet here late this afternoon with the prospects that new basketball regulations may be adopted for scholastic teams.

Coaches of the Ohio conference were to assemble to arrange spring sport programs and perhaps their football schedules for the fall season. An unofficial answer to the fact that the Buckeye conference may seek some of the Ohio conference teams as members of the "big five" circuit also may be forthcoming although Commissioner George Daniels of Lorain, previously had indicated that the Ohio league would not stand in the way.

Compared to the meeting of the board of control of the Ohio High School athletic association, however, the college coaches' conference probably will be a peaceful one. The high school group will be given a recommendation by Commissioner H. R. Townsend to broaden the annual state basketball tournament for the schoolboys to 16 teams from both the Class "A" and Class "B" divisions.

BRADDOCK WHIPS LASKY IN GARDEN

NEW YORK, March 23—The name is James J. Braddock and, if forgotten fighters had headstones, there should have been a chaste, handtooled epitaph to his memory somewhere in northern Jersey at least a year ago. One year ago, to be exact, he was back driving a taxicab and the local boxing commission, thinking him quite defunct, refused him a license to box at the Ridgewood Grove.

But last night at Madison Square Garden, all of the flaming spirit and at least a suggestion of the body of James J. Braddock climbed off its coffin to outfight, out-punch and outgame one of the recognized ranking heavyweights of the day, a Mr. Art Lasky, of Los Angeles or Minneapolis, whichever cares to claim the body.

Mr. Lasky probably is all right but he ought to go in for something a little more refined. He folded like a tobacco pouch after the tenth round. This James J. Braddock just played a little too rough.

BADGERS IN ACTION

ORLANDO, Fla., March 23—Casey Stengel's Brooklyn Dodgers today play the Detroit Tigers at Lakeland with Watson Clark and Tom Zachary on the mound. Van Mungo will oppose Schoolboy Rowe when the teams meet again tomorrow. In yesterday's game with the Baltimore Orioles, the Brooklyn team won easily, 6 to 3.

MONROE TWP.

The Parent Teachers association presented an excellent musical play last Thursday evening. The title was "Don't Call Us Slow" and the theme was that these days rural people possess the same up-to-date characteristics as their city cousins. Sixty were in the cast. A rhythmic review of life as seen by the modernistic mothers, modern misses, junior lads, modern maids, and future men and maidens was presented in clever chorus numbers. Proceeds are to be used in purchasing a new curtain for the stage. Mrs. Barton planned and coached the play. Just prior to the opening of the play the audience heard the local oratorical contest in which Mary Jane Walters and Turney Sheets participated. The former was chosen to represent Monroe in the county contest to be held at Williamsport the 12th of April.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Timmons of Circleville spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Winfough of Five Points.

Washington Merry-go-round

President is Concerned Over Inadequacy of Embassy Staff in Berlin

WASHINGTON—One worry the Administration faces in regard to Germany is the fact that the American Embassy in Berlin is one of the most poorly staffed in Europe. Its reports seldom give a clear picture of what is going on and Ambassador Dodd appears to run off on tangents. As a result the State Department has been considering sending a new counselor of Embassy to reinforce him. . . . One of Chief Justice Hughes' favorite old remarks: "You women men worry about birth control." To men worry about birth control. To prevent worry Hughes has been going through a standing-squinting exercise every morning for years. . . . Jerome Frank, kicked out of the AAA as a "visionary radical," really got a promotion. He is now in charge of railway reorganization for the RFC. This is right down Frank's alley. In his private law practice, Frank helped reorganize the 'Frisco, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and the Van Sweringen lines.

Eager

Although the Republican National Committee does not meet until December, Chicago, Atlantic City, Detroit, Kansas City and San Francisco have already submitted bids for the party's presidential convention in 1936. Huey Long's attack on Postmaster General Jim Farley has made a hermit of the latter as far as the press is concerned. Jim hasn't held a press conference since the Louisiana opened fire. . . . Extract from a recent letter received at the White House and addressed to the President "I have prayed nightly for weeks for a permanent, but God hasn't found a way for me to get one. Can't you help me?" . . . The report reached Washington that young, able Lloyd Garrison, former Chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, is slated for the Presidency of the University of Wisconsin if and when the Board of Regents can unload incumbent Glenn Frank.

Success in wrong doing has a sting attached to it and its poison is more bitter because it is of our own making.

THAT the man who donated the land for the High-st cemetery was the first person to be buried there, George Crook presented the land to the city in January, 1831. The cemetery was dedicated on March 19, 1831. Mr. Crook was buried there January 1, 1832. He was 33 years old.

That the first railroad to operate through Pickaway-co was the Cincinnati, Wilmington and Zanesville, formerly the C. and M. V. The railroad was completed and the first train ran through here in 1857. The next road was the Scioto Valley which started operation in 1876 and ran between Columbus and Circleville.

That Clement L. Martzoff, for many years head of the department of history at Ohio University, Athens, and noted authority on Ohio History, taught here in the Lutheran congregation school in 1898.

That Tarlton, the first village in the county, was laid out in 1801 by Benjamin Newell and was first called Newell's Town. Later the name was changed to honor General Tarlton, a Revolutionary War officer.

That on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, 1926, seven inches of snow fell in Circleville and the temperature was two degrees above zero.

That Wednesday, April 27, will represent the 20th anniversary of the burning of the famous aqueduct which spanned the Scioto river here for 84 years. This great structure of bridge-work, conceded at one time to be the finest in the state, was burned after two previous unsuccessful attempts by incendiaries. At 12:30 p. m. on Tuesday, April 27, 1915, drift wood and corn stalks which had been set fire were extinguished by the fire department. Then at 5 p. m. the same day fire again broke out and once more the blaze was put out. However, the third time the "firebug" was successful. At 11 p. m. William "Dude" Stottlenire, bridge tender, discovered a blaze in the third arch of the west end of the bridge. The flames soon spread and at 12:30 p. m. the massive structure fell into the Scioto river. Men, women and children in every kind of night garb lined the banks of the river to see the blaze which brought destruction to an ancient Circleville landmark. The aqueduct cost $30,000. Work was begun on it May 28, 1828 by Contractor Lowery, under the supervision of Chief Engineer P. N. White. Timber used in its construction was floated up the river from Portsmouth. The first boat to pass through when the aqueduct was completed was the "Governor Brown," a Circleville-made product. The aqueduct was opened Sept. 19, 1831.

That M. L. Stoddard of Tarlton in July, 1875, received a shipment of bees via the mail route from Clifton, Missouri. According to newspapers of the time, it was thought to have been the first time that a hive of "honey-makers" was sent through the mails.

Loans in Past Two Years Cut Soldiers' Sums Here

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23.—If Congress pays the bonus now, Pickaway-co veterans will get approximately $48,293 less than they would have received had payment been made in 1932.

This situation was revealed by a new set of figures presented to Congress by Wright Patman, father of the original bonus bill, and showing the amounts which would be paid to veterans in each county in the United States if the bonus were paid now. This new list was compiled from statistics as of December 31, 1934, Patman said.

The figure for Pickaway-co, under this list, is $434,636.77. Two years ago, Patman made public a list showing the amounts due veterans as of December 31, 1931. At that time, Pickaway-co veterans were listed for $482,929.74.

The shrinkage represents additional loans to veterans on their certificates, and accumulated interest on such loans. In his speech at the time he presented the new list, Patman pointed out that veterans are rapidly losing their equities in their adjusted service certificates, by being forced to pay compound interest on their loans. "Veterans who have borrowed 50 percent under the present law will have very little remaining in 1945," he declared. "It is not right for the government and the banks to consume these valuable equities by forcing the veterans to pay compound interest on their own money."

HOOVER RE-ENTERS STAGE OF POLITICS

WASHINGTON, Mar. 23.—Herbert Hoover's re-entry to the political stage today, with detailed criticism of the New Deal and a Republican call to arms for 1936, evoked wide interest and varying comment in the capital.

To the politicians of both parties, Mr. Hoover's letter to the California assembly sounded suspiciously like the first draft of a platform that Mr. Hoover would like to see the Republican party adopt next year. And most of them were agreed that in all probability Mr. Hoover would consent to be "drafted" on such a platform.

The threat of Mr. Hoover's platform, running throughout his letter, is that the New Deal is "un-American" and that individual liberty has been restrained to an unconstitutional degree by its operation.

Termed Un-American
The solution of the many problems now confronting the government, he said, rests first upon "orderly individual liberty and responsible constitutional government as opposed to Un-American regimentation and bureaucratic domination." This followed a general indictment of Roosevelt policies, which he said had failed.

If the Republicans in 1936 should follow Mr. Hoover's advice, they would:

1. Shake up the party, and try to draw back into its fold those "Liberal" elements that deserted it in 1932.
2. Assail without quarter the innovations of the New Deal that tend to restrict business and individual liberty.

The first objective presents considerable difficulties. The so-called progressive group among the Republicans, the Norrises, the LaFollettes, the Cuttings, the Johnsons, the Borahs, the Nyes, want none of Mr. Hoover or his leadership. Some of them are openly in the Roosevelt camp. Others are partly in it. And they are looking elsewhere than to Palo Alto for leadership and for issues.

Double Deadly Torpedo

LONDON, March 23.—Germany, despite restrictions of the peace treaties, has perfected an "invisible" and hence doubly deadly torpedo, it was stated today in the Daily Telegraph, usually well-informed on naval matters.

The new torpedo, according to the Telegraph's naval correspondent, is propelled by electricity instead of air, the old method which always permitted a tell-tale stream of bubbles to float to the surface of the water and betray the torpedo's course.

NOTED FLYER DIES ON 'LAST FLIGHT'

NEW YORK, March 23.—A sad news had been written today to the career of one of the best known and most romantic figures in commercial aviation.

James H. (Jimmy) Collins, test pilot, was killed late yesterday on what was to have been his last test flight and on the eve of what he had regarded as his greatest "break."

The Grumman biplane fighter which Collins was testing for the navy came to pieces in mid-air and crashed in the Pinalawn cemetery near Farmingdale, L. I. He died almost instantly.

Collins, who was 33, signed a contract about three weeks ago to write a daily column for a newspaper syndicate. He had obtained the position as the result of an article on the testing of military airplanes which he wrote recently for a national magazine.

Assured of a good income and a chance to live more conventionally with his wife and two small children, Collins had decided to abandon stunt and "test flying."

Yesterday's flight was definitely to have been his last.

FIEND KILLER FACES DEATH

Fish, 65, Found Guilty of Murdering Budd Girl; To Hear Sentence Monday

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 23.—Albert H. Fish, 65-year-old house painter, will be sentenced on Monday to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison for the "fiend murder" of ten-year-old Grace Budd in a lonely Westchester - co cottage in 1928.

A jury in supreme court found the old man guilty of first degree murder after deliberating for three and a half hours last night.

Fish lured the Budd girl from her home in New York on the promise of taking her to a party in the Bronx, killed the child and dismembered her body after subjecting her to numerous atrocities.

He was tracked down and arrested a few months ago through an obscene letter which he wrote the child's parents, taunting them.

Fish's trial began ten days ago and his Attorney James Dempsey sought to prove the defendant was legally insane when he committed the crime.

The prosecution, while admitting Fish guilty of many prevarications, insisted he knew the difference between right and wrong when he killed the little girl and therefore was legally sane. Various prominent alienists testified for both sides.

AUTO STRIKES CULVERT NEAR COUNTY HOME

Skull Fractured; Business Man Remains Unconscious in Hospital

TIRE BLOWS OUT

New Machine Wrecked in Terrific Crash

Harry E. Clifton, 41, operator of the Cliftona theatre and the Reliable Motors Co., was in a precarious condition in Berger hospital today suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident about 2:30 a. m. Saturday. The accident happened on the Lancaster-pk near the county infirmary.

Mr. Clifton was alone. At noon today he had not regained consciousness. He is suffering from a fractured skull. It was also reported he had a fractured jaw and other injuries but hospital attaches reported the only injury of which they were aware was the skull fracture.

Believe Tire Blown Out

Mr. Clifton had been at his theatre, the Liberty, in Lancaster Friday evening and was returning home in a 1935 Ford V-8. Clifton said today that a print on the road at the scene of the accident showed them that a tire had gradually blown out. The car went off the south side of the road, striking a culvert, and then came back into the roadway, where it was found in a righted position.

Ray Davis, employee of the Funk Groceries, and a Lancaster youth named Binkley, reached the scene shortly after the accident and found Mr. Clifton hunched over in the front seat. They took him to Berger hospital where he was placed under the care of Dr. Howard Jones. Davis and Binkley were driving toward this city.

Many View Auto

Mr. Clifton's automobile, which was carrying a dealer's license, was badly wrecked. It was towed to his garage Saturday morning where scores of persons saw it. A place where the driver's head struck the front of the car could be seen.

Three Killed at Railroad Crossing

XENIA, Mar. 23.—Three persons, one of them a woman, were instantly killed today when the automobile in which they were riding was struck at a crossing in the heart of Spring Valley, a village located six miles south of Xenia, by the Cincinnati Limited passenger train which was running 40 minutes late.

Search of the wreckage of the accident uncovered baby clothing strewn along the tracks. There was no sign that a baby was among the victims, however.

The automobile was completely demolished by the speeding passenger train and the bodies of the two men and woman were mangled almost beyond recognition.

Hurled Against Car

The body of the woman was hurled out of the machine and flung against a freight car standing on a siding nearby. Wreckage debris was strung along the railroad tracks for nearly a quarter of a mile.

POSTOFFICE SAFE BLASTED, LOOTED

CALDWELL, Mar. 23.—A gang of four safe-crackers "blew" the safe in the Summerfield postoffice near here early today and fled with loot totaling $250 in stamps and cash.

The burglars escaped in a light blue sedan automobile over route 78. A posse from the sheriff's office here set out on their trail immediately.

Investigation disclosed that nitro-glycerin was used to crack the safe.

David Dunlap, W. Frankish, reported to the sheriff's office today that five gallons of oil, gallons of grease and a number of pea sacks were stolen from a farm in Pickaway-town during the night.

WHY SUPPORT THE CHURCH

For my own sake as well as for the world's sake I support my church, She is my spiritual mother. She taught me my prayers and led my feet into the pleasant paths of the Book of God. She purified my purposes and prepared me for living. She urges me to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with God. When I stumble, she steadies me; when I suffer she visits me with her consolations; when I sorrow, she has the only word that comforts me; and when I go down through the valley of the shadow of death she will light my way home. Therefore I support my church with my money and my might and I welcome the opportunity to express my love for Christ and his church in a substantial way. WHY NOT ACCEPT THE INVITATION AND COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

It is good to send our children to church and church school and thus train up a child in the way he should go. It is better, while training our child thus, that we should go that way ourselves.

A father started up town on Sunday morning in the snow. He heard crashing in the snow behind. Turned to find his boy following. He said: Son what are you doing? In childish glee, he said, "O I was just trying to put my feet in your tracks." The father paused, stunned and thrust through the heart. He was on his way to the saloon. Then bracing himself said, Fine my son. Come on we are going to church, and led his child to salvation in Jesus.

Sunday March 31 is the last Sunday of this church year. What has been our contribution to making it a good year? What contribution of service and devotion will we make to the new church year?

Are we conscious of the fact that the greatest danger confronting our country is Paganism? Many of our other ills can be traced to the fact that we have left God out of our reckoning. If we make no contribution to the church life to maintain religion then we are by so much contributing to a growing paganism. Paganism is just a refined heathenism. We do not bow down before idols of wood or metal. We simply worship nothing higher than ourselves. Despite our conceit we haven't very much to worship. We all need recognize something higher and infinitely above ourselves. Only so does life become truly worthwhile. Only so does life have a hope to cherish of a life beyond this life for which this is the preparation. No doubt you can get along without religion until trouble comes. Then something instinctive within cries out for God. The church stands for religion in the best sense. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend.

To live in an illimitable world and yet not lose sight of one's immediate peace and task, is the secret of living both largely and well.

Home Education

The Time Table of Religion

In the book "Elemental Religion," L. P. Jacks says that he asked a teacher one day where in his time table he taught religion. The teacher replied, "We teach it all day long. We teach it in arithmetic by accuracy. We teach it in language by learning to say what we mean. We teach it in geography by breadth of mind. We teach it in handicraft by thoroughness. We teach it in astronomy by reverence. We teach it in the playground, by fair play. We teach it by kindness to animals, by courtesy to servants, by good manners to one another, and by helpfulness in all things. We teach it by showing the young that we their elders are their friends and lovers."

All human experience, when deeply understood turns out to be spiritual. In all forms of it, even in the most familiar, there is an element which reveals when we understand it rightly, the ceaseless impact, the inescapable pressure of the living God. It is a deplorable tendency which has arisen in an age, too much given to the study of religion and too little to the practice of it, of separating religious experience, of treating it as the privilege of a spiritual aristocracy.

Helps to Better Faith

Every noble act of devotion to truth, every pure life unstained with evil, every word of pity, every instance of forgiving goodness, helps us to a better faith in that divine and eternal goodness which has no variableness or shadow of turning.—Dr. J. E. Clarke.

Try It Yourself

Whatever may be said of the philosophy of Coleridge, his proof of the truth of Christianity was most simple and conclusive. It consisted in the words, "Try it for yourself."

Lesson for March 24

PETER DESCRIBES THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—1 Peter 3:8-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts; and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear. 1 Peter 3:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Pleasing Jesus Every Day.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Way of Living.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Like a Christian.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Our Christian Profession.

Having given instructions to citizens (2:13, 14), servants (2:18), wives (3:1-6), and husbands (3:7), Peter now sets forth the attitude and motives which are required for the perfection of all the relations of human life.

1. Characteristics of the Christian Life (vv. 8-11).

These find expression in personal attitudes and manner of living.

1. Toward fellow believers (v. 8).

a. "All of one mind." This means unity of thought and feeling. Christians being united to the one Lord Jesus Christ, animated by the one Holy Spirit and governed by the one Book, the Holy Scriptures, will inevitably come into possession of like-mindedness.

b. "Having compassion one of another." This means more than sympathy in times of sorrow. It means the sharing of joys as well as sorrows.

c. "Love as brethren." Being of the one family, a common affection should dominate its members.

d. "Be pitiful." This means tenderness, expressing itself in sympathy toward the helpless and needy.

e. "Be courteous." This means friendliness, Christian politeness.

2. Toward the world (vv. 9, 11).

a. "Not rendering evil for evil." Positively expressed, this means doing good for evil. The natural man renders evil for evil. The believer has been called thus to manifest the spirit of Christ.

b. "Eschew evil and do good" (v. 11). This means to shun or turn away from one's course at the approach of evil and the positive doing of good.

c. "Seek peace, and ensue it." It is not enough for a believer to refrain from conflict. He must bend every energy in the direction of peace.

II. Incentives to Christian Living (vv. 12-14).

1. "The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers" (v. 12). God not only takes account of their efforts to live righteously, but his ears are open to their cries for help.

2. "The face of the Lord is against them that do evil" (v. 12). God will surely visit in judgment those who depart from the way of right living.

3. God will protect and keep those who bend their energies to the doing of good (v. 13).

4. Happiness in suffering (v. 14). This means the suffering which results from the pursuing of the ways of righteousness.

III. How the Christian Life Can Be Lived (vv. 15, 16).

It cannot be lived in the power of human strength. A divine dynamic is provided.

1. "Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts" (v. 15). The Revised Version says, "Sanctify Christ as Lord," enthroning Jesus Christ as the Lord of life.

2. Be ready to give a reason for your hope (v. 15). A Christian should have an understanding of his faith, such as to give a reason to the inquirer. The Christian's faith rests upon the highest reason.

3. Live a conscientious life (v. 16). One's life should be so lived that the consciousness that actions are consistent before God and man is possible. Such a life will put to shame evil men who falsely accuse and despitely use the believer.

IV. The Issue of the Christian Life (vv. 17, 18).

Christ said to the disciples that they would receive the same treatment that the world accorded him. Paul says, "All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (II Tim. 3:12). If God wills that we suffer for well doing, let us rejoice, looking to Christ as our supreme example.

The city of Bombay, India, recently produced its own passion play entitled "The Man of Sorrows." It was based on the play made famous at Oberammergau. It had a cast of 28 actors, a choir of 198 and an orchestra of 48. It is said that some 20,000 people witnessed the production.

The family of Dr. Lewis R. Scudder, a well-known medical missionary has given the equivalent of a thousand years of missionary service in India. Dr. Scudder's grandfather gave up medical practice in New York City in 1819 as the first medical missionary to India. Since then 37 members of his family have served in India, including six of the fourth generation, now in service.

In 1933 Jewish immigration into Palestine was 4,000; in 1934 it was 60,000 of whom about 20,000 were German refugees. The present average is about 5,000 a month. Over 100 Jewish settlements have already been built up. The majority of the population in Jerusalem is Jewish now. Hundreds of new industries have been started up in the country. Palestine is becoming an important contender in the citrus fruit industry.

One of the most significant developments in Japan the past year has been the sudden interest shown by the people in religion. This takes the form of making religious books best sellers. The Broadcasting Association of Japan publishes a morning religious service. At one time Marxist publications were best sellers in Japan, particularly among the younger generation, but today religious books are best sellers.

Three scraps of tattered and stained papyrus found somewhere in Egypt and now in possession of the British Museum, may prove to be the "Fifth Gospel," long lost famous Egyptian version of the New Testament. PREBYTERIAN WOMEN HEAR MUSICAL PROGRAM

A musical program was enjoyed by the Presbyterian Women's Social club, Friday evening, when it held its March meeting in the church social rooms.

The second number was a group of piano solos by Miss Virginia Harper. Miss Harper, a graduate of the Oberlin College of Music, is a pianist of exceptional ability and artistically executed "Nocturne in E" by Chopin and as an encore she gave Etude by Chopin.

The third and concluding number was a group of vocal selections by Miss Lucille Kirkwood. She charmingly sang "The Mission of a Rose" by Cowen and "Sundown" a Londonderry Air.

he moved to the present location, 128 S. Court-st.

During the first few years of his business career, Mr. Sensenbrenner carried a stock of alarm clocks and other small items, but gradually added a stock of all kinds of jewelry until he had an up-to-date store in every particular. When phonographs came to be recognized as a form of entertainment for every home, Mr. Sensenbrenner secured the Edison agency and sold thousands of records throughout Pickaway-co.

Preceding his action with a vigorous speech to thousands of Fascists through the square beneath the Palazzo Venezia to celebrate the sixteenth anniversary of Fascism, Il Duce called the entire class of 1911 to the colors as a precautionary measure as virtually every European nation strengthened its armed forces in the wake of German rearmament.

Hold in Readiness

cry against waste and inefficiency in relief will soon be echoed in many other states.

"Our first objective was attained," he said, "when Hopkins was forced to put his name on the door as general manager of relief activities. Our second objective is to drive out this waste and inefficiency before asking Ohio taxpayers for the additional 15 million dollars needed as the state's share of relief this year."

There can no longer be any doubt that the governor is going to ask the legislature to impose new taxes in addition to the recently effective sales tax, but no definite recommendation to the legislature is anticipated until after the joint house and senate committee finishes an investigation of relief. It begins the probe next week.

To Relate Details
Calling the Franklin-co grand jury back into session today, Prosecutor Donald J. Hoskins announced he planned to present the jurors with the results of evidence he has obtained in secret investigations during the last two days regarding the charges of a "shake-down" of concerns doing business with the state relief organization.

Among those questioned secretly by the prosecutor yesterday was State Democratic Chairman Francis A. Poulson. The party leader was quizzed while police were being sent on the trail of John A. Lee, fugitive "key witness." Lee is a suspended employee of the relief organization and is reputed to have collected money for the campaign committee.

JUNIORS PRESENT CLASS PLAY NEXT THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

Ohio State Students Depict College Life

Friday afternoon's assembly entertainment, sponsored by the Pickaway county-Ohio State university club and presented by Circleville students attending O. S. U., went on record as carving a deep notch in the stick of impressive programs offered from time to time in the C. H. S. auditorium.

Ably interpreted by Clarence Baernhart, Ned B. Griner, Pat J. Kirwin, Donald A. May, Mary K. May, Robert May, Charles Plum, Mildred Ritt, Robert Rooney, Jacob Towers, and Glen Weiler, various phases of the university life greeted the student body.

Chief among the portrayals were scenes depicting a student entering Ohio State university: military training at the institution; distinguished alumni; an illustration of what does not happen to a freshman in O. S. U.; and information as to what Pickaway-co students are doing in Ohio's largest university.

Ohio State university's policy of giving individualized attention to each student was brought out. This was advanced as being the prime purpose of the program.

12th Ohio Commercial Contest to be May 11

Saturday, May 11, is the date set for the twelfth annual Ohio Commercial contests to be held in Bowling Green, Ohio at 10:00 o'clock.

Every contestant must be a bona fide student of the high school, from which he is entered, and must be carrying a full regular course including enough work in the second semester to complete a full year as provided by that school.

The first five places in each of the six events in typing and shorthand will receive recognition in the form of medals or certificates. The Quill-Type trophy will be awarded to the school winning the most points at the state contest in short hand and typing in class "A."

Sectional contests will be held Saturday, April 20, for the purpose of selecting the contestant eligible to represent the section at the state contest.

Several Circleville high school pupils will enter the contest.

50 SENIORS TAKE SCHOLARSHIP TEST

Over 50 seniors from Pickaway-co participated in the General Scholarship test for all high school seniors in the upper 35 percent of their respective classes which was given today at the Circleville high school building.

Exams were given in English, history, science, mathematics, and social science.

A committee composed of Mr. McDowell, county superintendent of schools, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Bowers, Mr. Gephart, and Mr. Warren assisted the state department of Education in administering the examinations.

CLASS DEBATES ON RAILROAD QUESTION

The question Resolved: That The Railroads Are Superior to Trucks, was discussed the past Friday in the fifth period Business English class.

The affirmative team which included Walter O'Gorn, Betty Morris, Ethel Stonerock, Tom Kirwin, and George Roth was the victor.

Those who debated against the affirmative were Jack Foreman, Dorothy Fausnaugh, Ned Plum, Dorothy Fohl, and Billy Kellstadt.

Mr. Day and six students were judges.

Eighth Graders Issue "Buckeye" News Sheet

The first issue of the "Buckeye," eighth grade news sheet, came off the press Wednesday afternoon.

The student staff includes Editor-in-chief, Mary Hays; Assistant editors, Ruth Clark and Robert Griner; Cartoonist, Frank Beck; Reporters, Betty McGinnis, W. H. Nelson, Frank Barnhill, Annabelle Schrammer, and David Click.

This paper has been a popular feature among the Junior high students for the past several years.

Athletic, Nature Group Goes on Skating Party

The Athletic and Nature group of the Senior Girl Reserves enjoyed a skating party Thursday night, March 21, at 7:30. The girls met at the home of Dorothy Lyle.

After skating, the group went to Elmer's soda grill for refreshments. Miss Ryan advises the group.

WHO'S WHO Among Seniors

FOR two years the editor-in-chief of these columns has been Elizabeth Dowden, who throughout her entire high school course has been a member of The Red and Black staff. She is at present debating whether to choose journalism as her major work at Ohio State university.

Although The Red and Black has been Elizabeth's chief extracurricular activity, an illustration of what does not happen to a freshman in O. S. U.; and information as to what Pickaway-co students are doing in Ohio's largest university.

Ohio State university's policy of giving individualized attention to each student was brought out. This was advanced as being the prime purpose of the program.

Elizabeth is a daughter of Mr. Mack Dowden of Wayne township and a sister of Durward Dowden, vice-president of the Second National bank.

CONNELL SELECTED ONE OF FIVE BEST OHIO BAND MASTERS

Dr. Grant Connell, who will be the guest director at Circleville's Spring band festival, has been selected as one of the five outstanding band directors of Ohio.

This distinguished band master together with Frank Simon, Edwin Goldman, Carl King, and Herbert Clark, will go to Toronto, Canada in August to direct bands at the greatest annual musical exhibition of North America.

On Friday, March 22 Dr. Connell held a rehearsal with the Circleville High School band from 7 to 8:30 o'clock.

Student Opinion

Question: Do you think the Social council has been a success?

Robert Teal, senior—I think it is a fine idea combining the officers of the Hi-Y and Girl Reserves to make the council and I hope we can help put on more programs like the dance Friday, March 15.

Betty Lee Nickerson freshman—Yes. The council is a worthwhile organization in my opinion. It gives pupils who do not belong to the Hi-Y and Girl Reserve clubs a chance to participate in social functions. The recent party and dance was a good example of this.

Dorothy Lyle, senior—It is a success because it gives the pupils in the council a chance to compare their opinions with those of the faculty. It helps to settle the business that comes up between the social organizations quickly and efficiently.

Ned Barnes, sophomore—I had more fun at the party Friday night than at any party or dance given this year. I think that the orchestra was one of the best that I have ever danced to at a school function.

Mary Ann Sapp, junior—I believe that the Social council has been a great benefit to the high school. This one group makes plans for the different dances, plays, programs, and other amusements given for the students.

JUNIOR ORCHESTRA PLAYS IN ASSEMBLY

A well-pleased audience witnessed the performance of the Junior orchestra in assembly the past Monday.

The program included: March, The Bosses; Minuetto from Symphony in D Major; Moment Musical; The Heavens Are Telling; From Chorus "The Creation"; and a march, Hosts of Freedom.

The Manual Training department under the direction of Mr. Zaugglin has made and placed a bookshelf in the high school library.

AFRICAN PRINCE TO ADDRESS STUDENTS

Something new and different in the way of an assembly program will be presented Monday morning by true nobility from the dark continent when Peter Kolnange, a native African prince, who is a present enrolled in Ohio Wesleyan university addresses the student body.

Mr. Kolnange will discourse of his country and tribe.

The speaker, whose father is the chief of a tribe in Liberia, is now in line for the chieftainship.

Monday evening, Mr. Kolnange will speak at the Kiwanis club.

MINSTREL PLANNED BY HOME-EC. CLUB

A minstrel is being planned by the Home Economics club for an assembly program in the near future.

Plans for this presentation are being organized by Jessie Dresbach, Charlotte Cook, and Theda Anderson.

Margaret Riegel will be hostess to the club Monday night, March 18, with Theda Anderson assisting.

A roller skating party will also be given by this group. The definite date has not been decided.

Unusual Happening Occurs at Tourney

Several things unexpectedly happened in the boys interclass basketball tournament; such as, the freshmen and sophomores both beating the seniors. However the freshmen and sophomores were put out of the running by the juniors, leaving the seniors and juniors to fight for the championship.

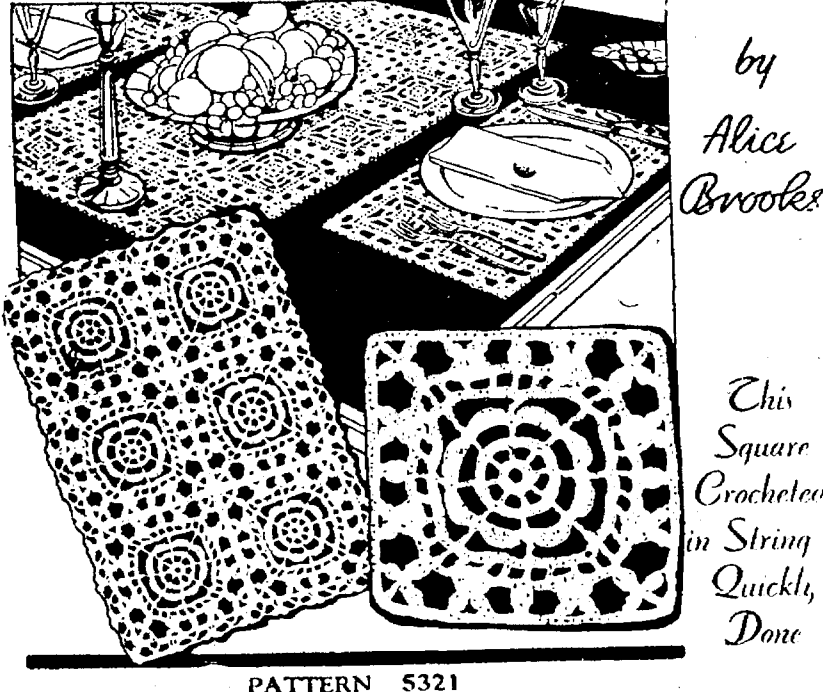

In the finals the seniors were defeated by the juniors in a fast thrilling game making the juniors boys champions.

Class of '36 Girls Take Championship 3 Times

For the third consecutive time the class of '36 has turned out a championship girls' basketball team.

The juniors defeated the sophomores and seniors to gain the championship. The freshmen were eliminated in games with the seniors and the sophomores.

BEGIN ADVERTISING NOW

NEWSPAPER advertising enjoys the greatest patronage of any form of advertising. Huge corporations spend tremendous sums every year to inform and lead the buyer. The press delivers the goods and is the bulk of the appropriation.

The situation in Circleville is the same as anywhere else. Here the newspaper is the best form of publicity, as well as the cheapest.
 Merchants who delay their advertising because they do not intend to outstep cigarette manufacturers are losing business through their failure.

It is better for every advertiser to begin modestly and expand than to begin extravagantly and lose his money, and most costly to his business, his faith in the power of advertising. If there is anything on the market today that has been put over without advertising we don't know what it is. Every merchant realizes this, even if he doesn't imitate the example of those who put things over.

THE SILVER KING'S WIDOW

IN COLORADO and in a great part of the West, the most absorbing story in the news is that which deals with the death of "Baby Doe"
 Tabor, widow of the once great silver king.

Elizabeth Tabor was one of the most beautiful women of her day.
 She was courted by many but married the owner of the Matchless mine, from which a wealth of silver flowed in an unceasing stream.

President Arthur and the members of his cabinet attended their wedding. They lived in a mansion and in an atmosphere of royal splendor. Finally, in 1893, the fabulous wealth of H. A. W. Tabor was swept away with the collapse of the silver market.

Years of privation followed, also of loneliness for Mrs. Tabor after her husband's death. The woman, so the story goes, gave her promise always to keep watch over the silver king's once great Matchless mine.

And she kept this promise until the end. In the midst of the signs of poverty and of squalor, the body of this faithful old woman was found in a shack on the outskirts of Leadville, the abandoned mine nearby holding a shadowy promise of renewed riches and power.

SPARE THE HURDY-GURDY

UP TO NOW there has been a great deal to admire in the administration of Mayor LaGuardia of New York. A free and courageous spirit who knows not the yoke of any political party, he has dealt with each of the constantly pressing problems of his office in accordance with his best judgment, which is usually clear, progressive and sound.

The mayor need not be surprised, however, if many of his old friends and admirers are alienated in consequence of his harsh edict abolishing the hurdy-gurdy from New York's streets. Just what worth, while purpose, it would be interesting to know, is served by this order?

The losses which its banishment involves are definite and unde-niable. The hurdy-gurdy is a picturesque reminder of a departed day.
 It affords a means of sustenance, meager, it is true, to the owner and the inevitable monkey or the green parrot that picks a forecast of the future out of a box for the curious soul who is willing to invest five or ten cents for this advance information. The hurdy-gurdy even fills the air with music, imperfect at times, it is true, and, what is most important, it serves as a harbinger of Spring.

Before he goes through with this fell scheme, Mayor LaGuardia should read Alfred Noyes' romantic poem called "The Barrel-Organ," which tells of the music that "pulses through the pleasures of the city and the pain" and the "symphony that rules the day and night."

Prosperity is back, the economists discover. Housewives discovered it several months ago in the price of foods.

Two deans of women's colleges in Philadelphia announce that no girl can be beautiful but dumb, which is a blow to the blade who prefers her that way.

A lion, we are assured by Clyde Beatty, is harmless as long as it is occupied. The big job of the trainer, as we understand it, is to keep from occupying the lion.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu.
 She despises her mother, Anica, but loves her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him until she suspects her gypsy secret-heart has tricked her about the ring's value. In town she sees three men playing cards near a private car on a railroad siding. She dances for them. Much impressed, one of the men, Stuart Blackmore, New York theatrical producer, promises to return in 10 days and give Consuelo a pair of slippers. Marcu bargains with Girtza for his daughter's hand.
 (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 14

MARCU HELD out his purse with the gold pieces and the finely made watch that had been his mother's.
 "The coin I will hitch to the end of your chain."

"It is good," Girtza counted the money and handed back the empty purse to Marcu. "Consuelo," he shouted, although it was not necessary, for the girl was sitting near him, her untouched breakfast plate in her lap. "Consuelo, come put your hand in this man's. When he has given me three horses he will be your master. Come, my child."

Consuelo rose, and like one in a stupor, came to Marcu and placed her hand in his. The diamond, shining in all its loveliness, was upon her finger.

Then it was that the gypsies raised a shout and threw their scarfs into the air and Peter picked up his flute and played. All the gypsies gathered in a circle around them and danced and sang. Marcu stood as proud as a king and his heart near burst within him. He glanced down at the girl, but she, like a well-behaved promisee, was looking down and no one saw her eyes.

Gaily the camp went about the morning tasks. The gypsies' voices were loud with discussion of the coming event and jests were made and laughter came light and easy and other of the young men began to flirt more openly with the young gypsy girls. So the monotony of the last hot summer days was stirred into life and it was more like spring than autumn.

Money was produced from belts that had boasted of none. Kegs of beer were bought. There were scarves and inexpensive jewelry presented to the girl. Some one gave Marcu a new knife, its steel blade shining, its handle pure ivory.

The news leaked into town.
 Curiosity was aroused. A gypsy wedding. Did they really get married? Smith's grocery store offered five gallons of hard cider if Smith, wife and family might be permitted to witness the ceremony. The promise of cider was accepted. Other gypsies also announced their intention of coming whether they were invited or not.

For two days Marcu disappeared and when he came back, dusty and tired, he was riding a young sorrel and leading a mare heavily with colt.
 He rode up to Girtza and said:

"Here are your three horses."
 How the gypsies laughed!
 Girtza pulled at his long beard and spat on the ground and said that it was not the bargain.

Marcu was insistent. The gypsies stopped laughing. Perhaps there was some sense in what he said. They felt of the mare and nodded and talked with one another.
 "It will not be longer than three days before she foals. Perhaps only two."

All morning the discussion kept up and in the end Girtza agreed to accept the mare and the unborn colt and they set the wedding at three days hence to live up to the bargain, for they were all of the opinion that the mare would not carry longer than the three days.

The new assurance the Dummy had taken on after the fight with Marcu vanished. He put the colt away in his box and his brushes in idle. He kept out of the merry-making, for with the opening of the beer, it had already started. His dark eyes were shrouded with heaviness, his face pale under the tawny skin, his slim fingers restless, but he could not paint. Laughing heads on canvas? Ah, no. He had

"It is good."

not the heart for them.

He drew a small sketch of her in black, a veil about her head, her clothes of somber hues, her body hidden. Only a bare throat and a pale face with eyes cast down were visible. So had she looked to him when the gypsies made the betrothal circle. But when he had finished the picture he could not bear the sadness he had drawn, so he burned it.

His heart was heavy with bitterness. The blood throbbed in his temples and he cursed his dead lips. If he could talk, if he could hear, Consuelo would be his. But what right had he to fight for her, a half dead man as he was. Oh, God, why hadn't he been born blind that he might never have seen her loveliness, could never have dreamed of her,
 never have desired her until life itself was not worth while without her.

Then he cursed himself for a fool and beat his hands against his breast. "If there is a God in the heaven, let him forgive me," and he fell to his knees and gave thanks that he was not blind, and the artist soul of him gave thanks for her beauty, but it did not heal his sore heart.

He went back to the camp and joined in with the others. Because his eyes were dark and forbidding, the gypsies did not joke with him because he had not won the girl. He drank beer with them, but it did not lift the cloud of his sorrow.

One of the men showed a battle kerchief he had made for Consuelo. The Dummy had given her nothing. Had been so concerned with himself that he had not thought of it. Now the time was growing short, only this afternoon and tomorrow left. Then she would be a bride. He must have a gift for her.
 Something beautiful—something beautiful—

He left the group and hastened into the town. It took him an hour to buy a piece of white silk. He ran back to camp, the sweat rolling down his body. Feverishly he unwrapped the paints and brushes and stretched the silk on a board. The heat of the afternoon sun poured down upon him, but he worked like an automaton. The silk took shape.
 He forgot the merry-makers, forgot the bitter hurt within him. Creation was pulsing through his fingers to take form.

The sun seemed to fly on wheels of flaming gold toward the hills, but still he worked. The call came for dinner. He was not satisfied. The purple shades of twilight came down to the hills. He worked on.
 The light did not matter now. He could have closed his eyes and kept on working, so well did his mind portray the picture he was putting upon the white silk.

Now the last sweep of the brush.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Enthusiasm spoiled a scene during the production of "Sweet Adeline," the Warner Bros. musical hit now showing at the Grand Theatre.

When Irene Dunne was about to sing the beautiful Jerome Kern number, "Why Was I Born," the extras were instructed to applaud and to make wild comments such as "Fine," "Wonderful," "Who is that new singer?" etc.

At the end of Miss Dunne's song one over-enthusiastic extra forgot himself and his voice, audible above the rattle of comment, registered
 "Best damn singing I ever heard."
 The scene was retaken.

AT THE CLIFTONA

One of the eight technical advisers retained by Paramount for "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," coming Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to the Cliftona Theatre, was Major G. O. T. Bagley, himself a former officer of the famous British India cavalry unit. Gary Cooper, Francisco, and Richard Cromwell and Sir Guy Standing head the cast of the picture which was four years in preparation for the screen and employed over four thousand actors.

Editorial Of The Day

HOLDING COMPANIES

(Ashland Times-Gazette)
 Holding companies in the power field have been guilty of many wrongs in the last few years. The Insull organization is an example of how far such concerns will go if not held under proper legal control.

Congress is now considering a bill that would abolish public utility holding companies.

Whether or not the holding companies should be outlawed is a debatable question. We must take into consideration that the holding company, if properly organized, performs the same purpose for industry that the incorporated company does for the individual.

The public utility holding company has been the instrument of many abuses due to the fact that it has not been properly regulated.

If the measure becomes law, useful consolidation as well as those of questionable value, will be abolished. The real problem, we believe, is essentially that of wise supervision, with the federal and state governments cooperating rather than outright destruction of the companies as proposed in the Rayburn bill.

Giving Home Invalid Bath
Is Task One Should Know

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
 TO GIVE the invalid a bath in bed is rightly regarded as the apex of the nicety of nursing technique.

The home nurse regards this procedure with awe and dread. Yet all she needs to do to gain assurance is to plan a bath in bed and give one.

The whole secret of success is in planning ahead. Close the windows and put a screen in front of the door. A screen can be improvised with a clothes horse and a blanket. A table and chair should be put at the head of the bed at the right side of the patient.

Prepare a bucket of hot water and a dishpan to wring out the wash-cloths. The dishpan should have some hot water in it to begin with so you can rinse the washcloths. Two washcloths are needed—one for the face, one for the body. A bath towel and a face towel to spread on the bed to protect it from wetting and other towels for drying should be ready. A cake of castile soap, tal-cum powder and tooth paste should be on the table. Toothbrush, glass of water, and spit basin for tooth brushing, and you are ready.

"After the tooth brushing, take away all pillows but one, and take off the nightgown, take away all bed coverings except a sheet. Put a face towel on the pillow and spread a bath towel on the bed so that it can be moved around as you proceed from one part of the body to the other.

Wash one part of the body at a time and dry it before you go on to the next part. The simplest order is chest and abdomen in front, right arm, back, left arm, left leg, right leg, face.

Use a firm stroke in washing and drying. The incidental massage is as beneficial as the cleansing. The bath is not only a means of cleanliness.
 It also makes the invalid feel good.
 And it may prevent disagreeable skin complications such as bed sores. The skin throws poisons during illness, which dry on the surface. The bath removes this possible source of danger. And the gentle friction of the washcloth improves the circulation and gives a general feeling of well being to the whole body.

So much for the cleansing bath.
 It may also be necessary to give a sponge bath for temperature—one of the most valuable procedures in treatment. The technique is the same as the cleansing bath except that no soap is used and the water should be lukewarm or cool—70 to 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

The secretary, Mrs. Laura Evans, read the minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll, finding thirty members and a number of visitors present. After singing "One Day for Thee" Rev. The meeting closed by all singing "God Will Take Care of You" and all repeating Mispah. TOURNAMENT FINALS TONIGHT

AKRON NORTH, COSHOCTON TO PLAY CLASS A

Waterloo Ranking Favorite to Take Oxford Stewart; Central Is Eliminated

COLUMBUS, March 23—Akron North vs. Coshocton.

Waterloo vs. Oxford Stewart. This was the line-up for the final tonight of Ohio's state high school basketball championship after two hectic days of rapid-fire games which saw twelve teams fall by the wayside.

Akron North won the right to meet Coshocton's Redskins for the Class "A" crown last night by smothering out an overwhelming 46 to 21 score against Columbus Central in the semi-final round in the cavernous coliseum at the state fairgrounds here.

The Akron team, exhibiting an airtight, roving zone defense, held the Red and Black Pirates of Central scoreless throughout the entire first half, save for five free throws, four of which were sunk by Bob Elder, negro star of the team.

Victory Easy One
The rangy northern squad, showing a marked deadliness on their shots, completely outplayed the Central and walked off with one of the easiest victories of the tournament.

Coshocton showed great offensive possibilities during the first half of its battle with Lima Central and, with the aid of an excellent zone defense, captured a 16-to-2 lead at the half-time. The second half, however, was more evenly fought with Lima outscoring the Red and Black by a 9-to-8 margin, but the Coshocton squad had too large a lead to overcome.

The work of Ken Daugherty, lanky center, and Gerald Crowthers, rangy forward, featured Coshocton's attack. Forrest Moor and Don Paul led the Lima squad's futile attempt to dampen the Redskins.

Waterloo's rampaging Wonders showed exceptional power in defeating Fremont St. Joseph, one of the tournament's dark horses, by an impressive 48 to 21 score. The Sandusky countians made a real battle of it during the first half but were outclassed by too a large margin to gain a victory.

The passing of Orlyn Roberts and Capt. Curt McMahon featured the game, while Beryl Drummond, mite forward, and Wyman Roberts, emerged from the contest with eighteen and seventeen points respectively. Herb Miesle starred for the losers.

Oxford Stewart showed great potentialities in its 29-to-14 defeat of Maumee.

Stewart ran up a 12-0 score in the first quarter and was never threatened. Work of Earl Chears, lanky Oxford colored center, on rebounds featured the contest. Frances Wallen led the Orange and Black attack with fourteen points. Ralph Crandall was outstanding for Maumee.

McClain Loses Again
Dayton Stivers took Greenfield McClain into camp by a 32 to 28 score and will meet Akron West, defending consolation champs, for the consolation crown tonight. Play of Capt. Jimmie Hull, of the losers, featured the encounter. He scored 12 points. Larry Knorr was the Stivers satellite with thirteen points for the scoring honors of the game.

Battle of Century: Dean vs. Ruth!

Babe Ruth is thirsting for his next crack at Dizzy Dean, after being held hitless in first game in which he faced him, at St. Petersburg, Fla. Largest crowd in Florida baseball history turned out to see Dizzy make good his promise to keep Ruth off bases. To show there's no ill-feeling, however, they grin at each other after game, during which this remarkable photo was made. (Central Press)

DEAN AND OTHER CARDS CLUBBED

LAKELAND, Fla., March 23—If only we could have done in October what we did in March. Detroit Tigers, young and old, are telling each other this today as they chuckle over the 12 to 5 wallop they gave the St. Louis Cardinals and the less dizzy half of the Deans, Paul, yesterday while 2,582 customers looked on.

And the beauty of it all came in watching a couple of left handed rookies setting the world champions on their collective ears. Clyde (Mad) Hatter and Joe Sullivan did the pitching while the one and only Dizzy Dean, who won two of the world series games from the Tigers last fall, sat on the bench.

NEW CAGE RULES MAY BE ENACTED

COLUMBUS, March 23—Officials that govern athletics in Ohio high schools and the majority of the state's colleges were scheduled to meet here late this afternoon with the prospects that new basketball regulations may be adopted for scholastic teams.

Coaches of the Ohio conference were to assemble to arrange spring sport programs and perhaps their football schedules for the fall season. An unofficial answer to the fact that the Buckeye conference may seek some of the Ohio conference teams as members of the "big five" circuit also may be forthcoming although Commissioner George Daniels of Lorain, previously had indicated that the Ohio league would not stand in the way.

Compared to the meeting of the board of control of the Ohio High School athletic association, however, the college coaches' conference probably will be a peaceful one. The high school group will be given a recommendation by Commissioner H. R. Townsend to broaden the annual state basketball tournament for the schoolboys to 16 teams from both the Class "A" and Class "B" divisions.

BRADDOCK WHIPS LASKY IN GARDEN

NEW YORK, March 23—The name is James J. Braddock and, if forgotten fighters had headstones, there should have been a chaste, handtooled epitaph to his memory somewhere in northern Jersey at least a year ago. One year ago, to be exact, he was back driving a taxicab and the local boxing commission, thinking him quite defunct, refused him a license to box at the Ridgewood Grove.

But last night at Madison Square Garden, all of the flaming spirit and at least a suggestion of the body of James J. Braddock climbed out of its coffin to outfight, out-punch and outgame one of the recognized ranking heavyweights of the day, a Mr. Art Lasky, of Los Angeles or Minneapolis, whichever cares to claim the body.

Mr. Lasky probably is all right but he ought to go in for something a little more refined. He folded like a tobacco pouch after the tenth round. This James J. Braddock just played a little too rough.

BADGERS IN ACTION

ORLANDO, Fla., March 23—Casey Stengel's Brooklyn Dodgers today play the Detroit Tigers at Lakeland with Watson Clark and Tom Zachary on the mound. The Parent Teachers association presented an excellent musical play last Thursday evening. The title was "Don't Call Us Slow" and the theme was that these days rural people possess the same up-to-date characteristics as their city cousins. Sixty were in the cast. A rhythmic review of life as seen by the modernistic mothers, modern misses, junior lads, modern maids, and future men and maidens was presented in clever chorus numbers. Proceeds are to be used in purchasing a new curtain for the stage. Mrs. Barton planned and coached the play. Just prior to the opening of the play the audience heard the local oratorical contest in which Mary Jane Walters and Turney Sheets participated. The former was chosen to represent Monroe in the county contest to be held at Williamsport the 12th of April.

Washington Merry-go-round

President is Concerned Over Inadequacy of Embass Staff in Berlin

WASHINGTON—One worry the Administration faces in regard to Germany is the fact that the American Embassy in Berlin is one of the most poorly staffed in Europe. Its reports seldom give a clear picture of what is going on and Ambassador Dodd appears to run off on tangents. As a result the State Department has been considering sending a new counselor of Embassy to reinforce him.

One of Chief Justice Hughes' favorite old remarks: "You women men worry about birth control." To men worry about birth control. To prevent worry Hughes has been going through a standing-squinting exercise every morning for years.

Jerome Frank, kicked out of the AAA as a "visionary radical," really got a promotion. He is now in charge of railway reorganization for the RFC. This is right down Frank's alley. In his private law practice, Frank helped reorganize the Frisco, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and the Van Sweringen lines.

Eager
Although the Republican National Committee does not meet until December, Chicago, Atlantic City, Detroit, Kansas City and San Francisco have already submitted bids for the party's presidential convention in 1936.

Huey Long's attack on Postmaster General Jim Farley has made a hermit of the latter as far as the press is concerned. Jim hasn't held a press conference since the Louisianian opened fire.

Extract from a recent letter received at the White House, and addressed to the President "I have prayed nightly for weeks for a permanent, but God hasn't found a way for me to get one. Can't you help me?" The report reached Washington that young able Lloyd Garrison, former Chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, is slated for the Presidency of the University of Wisconsin if and when the Board of Regents can unload incumbent Glenn Frank.

Success in wrong doing has a sting attached to it and its poison is more bitter because it is of our own making.
